PATRIK GRIJALVO (b. 1984)

With the use of an analog Hasselbach camera, Spanish artist Patrik Grijalvo captures images of contemporary buildings created by celebrated architects. These structures are typically museums and other cultural institutions, known for their daring designs and technological breakthroughs. Grijalvo prints the images digitally, selecting architectural elements of interest which he then cuts and re-configures into three dimensional collages. These “photo objects” result in strikingly eloquent interplays of planes and forms of subverted construction. While abstracted, the works offer enough recognizable characteristics to bring a certain sense of familiarity. Grijalvo’s works are included in multiple collections including the Fundación Bilbao Arte, Het Wilde Weten in The Netherlands, and the Athens School of Fine Art in Greece. The artist lives and works in Bilbao, Spain.
